Product details

Kate Bryan, head of collections at Soho House, says of London-based artist Julie Verhoeven: 'Julie's practice moves between art, fashion and design; her work has a punk-like cartoonish quality to it. With a strong sense of colour and texture, she creates energy, humour and pungency.' Her piece is titled 'Lazy Susan' - the term used for a turntable that helps with serving food. 'This came to mind when thinking of the atmosphere of the dining area, with reference to the circular tables of Little House in Mayfair. I wanted the cloche to reveal the decadence and riotous fun beneath the elegant facade. Permission to lead the life of a bon vivant for a night! A riot of food and drink, spinning at speed, like a giant cup and saucer ride.'
