Product details

Brooklyn-based printmaker and painter, Cody Hoyt, has recently shifted his focus to faceted, hand-marbled ceramics, merging the realms of graphic and ceramic design. Inspired by a range of multimedia references, from sculptures by Ken Price to The Memphis Group founded by Ettore Sottsass, Hoyt's work blends detailed, geometric form with function.

This hand-built ceramic vessel is crafted from organic clay and sculpted into an angular form with a glazed, highly geometric exterior. Mesmerised by the unpredictable nature of ceramic design, the vessel is molded and engineered by Hoyt's own hands, making the piece entirely unique.
