

Truth Included Bookends, Natural Stand

£250 Regular

£213 SOHO HOME+

Available in

Product details

Philanthropic lifestyle brand, Let's Do Better, has joined forces with Brooklyn-based interior design incubator, Lichen, to encourage the necessary reform of how Black History is taught in the American School System. Together, they hope to raise awareness on the inaccurate and incomplete narratives of Black history, and through product, shed light on the true Black experience.

The Truth Included Bookends are inspired by American artist, Donald Judd's Backward Slant Chair and are available in five colours. Each one is handmade in Brooklyn from 100% American maple wood. The set includes a selection of five pivotal Black History books that are excluded from the majority of American School curriculums. These are listed below:

- Maya Angelou: I Know Why the Caged Birds Sing
- W.E.B DuBois: The Souls of Black folk
- Zora Hurston: Their Eyes Were Watching God
- Frantz Fanon: Black Skin White Masks
- James Baldwin: The Fire Next Time

- Truth Included Bookends
- Let's Do Better x Lichen
- Made from 100% American maple wood in Brooklyn
- Available in five colours
- Includes a selection of five books (listed above)
- Limited-edition poster by Brooklyn based contemporary artist, Corey Presha
- The poster outlines a step-by-step guide on how to demand education reform locally

50% of profits of each sale are donated to The Carter Center for K-12 Black History Education

Details

Material: 100% American maple wood