Product details

Found in the bedrooms at Soho House Chicago and inspired by turn of the century design, Lexington is our largest and most glamorous light. A tiered waterfall chandelier, it features layers of hand-polished glass droplets on a brass-plated steel cage. Each glass prism has faceted edges that throw the light in different directions, creating a beautiful light pattern around the room. The totem designed bulb configuration means light is distributed equally throughout the chandelier. It would make an impact centralised in a dining room or on a spacious landing.
