Product details

Soho House Design's Daisy Bere says 'The Tennant was inspired by a comment that Nick Jones made - he wanted it to look like a microphone, as a nod to White City House's BBC heritage. It's also inspired by French industrial design.'

Perforations in the polished brass shade allow more light through, giving an ambient glow as well as directional light to read by. Try it on either side of a bed in the style of White City House.

- Adjustable wall light with perforated shade
- Mid-Century design and modern functionality
- Polished brass finish
- Inspired by the lights in the bedrooms at White City House
